PARTICIPANT BIOGRAPHIES

Douglas Brooks
Douglas Brooks is President of The International Peace Operations Association (IPOA), a nongovernmental, nonprofit, nonpartisan association of service companies dedicated to improving international peacekeeping and stabilization efforts through greater privatization. He is a specialist on private sector capabilities and African security issues and has written extensively on the regulation and constructive utilization of the private sector for international stabilization, peacekeeping and humanitarian missions.

Mr. Brooks has testified before the U.S. Congress, South African Parliament, appeared on numerous TV and radio programs including the BBC, CBS News, NBC News, Fox News, CNN International, National Public Radio, Voice of America, SABC in South Africa and the Lehrer News Hour. He has lectured at numerous universities and colleges, including Georgetown University, the South African Defense College, and the Inter-American Defense College at Ft. McNair. Mr. Brooks is originally from Indiana and has a BA in History from Indiana University, an MA in History from Baylor University, with doctoral studies at the Graduate School of Public and International Affairs, University of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Frank A. Camm, Jr.
Dr. Camm is a senior economist with RAND and currently leads projects for the U.S. Air Force and Office of the Secretary of Defense. Dr. Camm has worked for RAND since 1976, except during 1983-85. At RAND, he has worked on many resource allocation and management issues. His defense-related work has addressed the development of manpower requirements; risk assessment and management; design of logistics supply chains; design of pricing, programming, budgeting, and other financial management processes; and sourcing of support services. Effective cost measurement, process improvement, and adaptation of best commercial management practices for use in government agencies are themes that run through much of this work. Dr. Camm has served on many government committees, including as a member of the official U.S. delegation to the United Nations Environment Programme conference that led to the Montreal Protocol; a member of the Air Force Scientific Advisory Board for its study of life extension and capability enhancement options for major Air Force weapon systems; and as a member of the congressionally mandated Commercial Activities Panel. He has also served on a variety of other high-level teams for the Office of the Secretary of Defense, Army, and Air Force. Dr. Camm holds a Ph.D. in Economics from the University of Chicago.
Phillip Carter
Phillip Carter is an attorney with the Los Angeles office of McKenna Long & Aldridge LLP who practices in the area of government contracts and international law. His national security practice includes work for major defense contractors on regulatory and government contracts issues, counseling for contractors involved with reconstruction in Iraq, and recently, representation of several military law scholars and practitioners filing an amicus curiae brief in Hamdan v. Rumsfeld. Mr. Carter contributes on national security issues to Slate, the Washington Monthly, and the New York Times, among other publications, and has appeared on National Public Radio, CNN and the Jim Lehrer NewsHour. He served for nine years as an Army officer in a variety of military police and civil affairs assignments, including a combat deployment from 2005-2006 as an adviser to the police and provincial government in Baqubah, Iraq, as part of the Army's 101st Airborne Division.

Theodore D. Chuang
Theodore D. Chuang is the Deputy Chief Investigative Counsel for the U.S. House of Representatives, Committee on Oversight and Government Reform. The Oversight Committee is the principal investigative committee in the House and has broad jurisdiction to investigate any federal program and any matter with federal policy implications. Mr. Chuang leads congressional investigations and coordinates congressional hearings on such matters as waste, fraud, and abuse in Iraq reconstruction contracting; the use of private security contractors in the Iraq War; and the White House leak of classified information relating to CIA Officer Valerie Plame Wilson.

Prior to joining the Committee, Mr. Chuang practiced law at Wilmer Cutler Pickering Hale and Dorr LLP, focusing on white-collar criminal defense, corporate internal investigations, and complex civil litigation. He represented companies and individuals in the government contracting, securities, telecommunications, and energy sectors in federal and state criminal investigations and prosecutions for securities fraud, accounting fraud, tax evasion, and national security violations. From 1998 to 2003, Mr. Chuang served as an Assistant United States Attorney at the U.S. Attorney's Office in Boston, Massachusetts. In that role, he investigated and prosecuted a wide array of white-collar and violent crimes. As an Assistant U.S. Attorney, he also successfully briefed and argued numerous appeals before the U.S. Court of Appeals for the First Circuit. Mr. Chuang has also served as a Trial Attorney at the U.S. Department of Justice, Civil Rights Division, where he investigated and litigated civil actions on behalf of the United States to enforce federal laws prohibiting discrimination in housing, mortgage lending, and public accommodations.

Mr. Chuang graduated magna cum laude from Harvard Law School, where he was an Editor of the Harvard Law Review, and summa cum laude from Harvard College. He is a former law clerk to Judge Dorothy W. Nelson of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

Colonel Flora D. Darpino
Col. Darpino currently serves as Chief of the Criminal Law Division in the Office of The Judge Advocate General in Rosslyn, Virginia. She entered the Army Judge Advocate
General’s Corps in 1987 with a direct commission. Prior to her current assignment, Colonel Darpino held a variety of positions, including Trial Defense Counsel, Stuttgart, Germany; Chief, Civil and International Law, VII Corps, Stuttgart, Germany; Assistant Operations Officer and Training Officer, Headquarters, U.S. Army Trial Defense Service; Litigation Attorney, US Army Litigation Division; Chief, Administrative and Civil Law Division, Fort Campbell, Kentucky; Assistant Executive Officer to The Judge Advocate General; Chief, Judge Advocate Recruiting Office; and Staff Judge Advocate, 4th Infantry Division, Fort Hood, Texas; and Deputy Staff Judge Advocate, III Corps, Fort Hood, Texas.

Col. Darpino graduated from Gettysburg College in Pennsylvania in 1983 with a Bachelor of Arts with Honors in Economics. She earned her J.D. in 1986 from Rutgers - Camden School of Law, Camden, New Jersey. She earned her Masters in Law with Honors from The Judge Advocate General’s School in Charlottesville, Virginia. Her military education includes the Judge Advocate Officer Basic Course, Judge Advocate Officer Graduate Course, Army Command and General Staff College and the Army War College Fellowship Program. Her awards include the Bronze Star, the Meritorious Service Medal (5 OLC), the Army Commendation Medal, the Army Achievement Medal, National Defense Service Medal (2), Iraqi Campaign Medal; Global War on Terrorism Service Medal; Army Service Ribbon; and the Overseas Service Ribbon.

Christopher Davis
Christopher Davis is a professional staff member on the House Committee on Oversight and Government Reform. Mr. Davis has worked for Chairman Henry Waxman's staff on the Committee for more than five years, the last four as an oversight investigator. In this capacity, Mr. Davis has investigated topics such as the politicization of federal scientific research, abuses of the civil service system, and numerous examples of waste, fraud and abuse in federal procurement and grantmaking. Recently, Mr. Davis has been focused on the Committee's investigations into federal government contracts for Iraq reconstruction and troop support, including the growing role of private military firms in that effort. Mr. Davis holds a degree in Human Biology from the University of Pennsylvania.

Laura A. Dickinson
Laura A. Dickinson is a Professor at the University of Connecticut School of Law, where she has taught since 2001. During 2006-07, Professor Dickinson is a Visiting Research Scholar and Visiting Professor in the Law and Public Affairs Program at Princeton University. A graduate of Harvard College and Yale Law School, she subsequently served as a senior policy adviser to Harold Hongju Koh, Assistant Secretary of State for Democracy, Human Rights, and Labor at the U.S. Department of State. In addition, she served as a law clerk to Justices Harry A. Blackmun and Stephen G. Breyer on the U.S. Supreme Court, and to Judge Dorothy Nelson of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

Professor Dickinson's work, which has focused on transitional justice, legal responses to terror, foreign affairs privatization, and the relationship between international and domestic law, includes: “Public Law Values in a Privatized World,” 31 Yale J. Int'l L. 384 (2006);

Professor Dickinson is a term member of the Council on Foreign Relations and co-organizer of a Collaborative Research Network on Empirical Approaches to International Human Rights Law, convened under the auspices of the Law & Society Association.

Dr. Cordula Droege
Dr. Droege is a legal adviser in the legal division of the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC), where her files include, among others, the privatization of warfare. In this capacity, she is responsible for the ICRC’s participation in the Swiss Initiative on Private Military and Security Companies which aims at facilitating a dialogue between concerned States and identifying good practices on ensuring compliance with international humanitarian and human rights law in the activities of PMCs/PSCs.

Before joining the ICRC in 2005, Dr. Droege worked as a legal officer at the International Commission of Jurists, where she covered such issues as human rights in the administration of justice and business and human rights. Between 1998 and 2001, Dr. Droege was a research fellow at the Max-Planck Institute for International Law in Heidelberg. From 2001 to 2004, she was a lecturer on human rights law in Berlin.

Dr. Droege is qualified as a Judge and a Barrister in Berlin. She holds a law degree and Ph.D. from University of Heidelberg and an LL.M from London School of Economics.

Melissa J. Epstein
Melissa J. Epstein is an associate attorney in the Los Angeles office of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher. Ms. Epstein previously served as a commissioned officer in the U.S. Marine Corps. As a Marine prosecutor and then as defense counsel, she litigated numerous courts-martial at Camp Pendleton and in Iraq. Ms. Epstein traveled extensively throughout the Al Anbar province of Iraq, investigating and prosecuting courts-martial. Additionally, she advised Marine commanders on issues of international law and the laws of war relating to the detention and treatment of enemy combatants. Ms. Epstein completed her active-duty Marine Corps service in June 2006 at the rank of Captain. In a pro bono capacity, she currently represents a Marine facing court-martial on charges of first-degree murder.

Ms. Epstein graduated from the State University of New York at Binghamton and received her law degree from Columbia Law School. Following her graduation, she served as a law clerk to Judge Andrew S. Effron, U.S. Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces. Ms.
Epstein subsequently worked in The Hague as a prosecuting attorney at the United Nations International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia, where she assisted in the investigation and prosecution of the Srebrenica massacres.

Eric Fair

Eric Fair graduated from Boston University in 1994 and enlisted into the United States Army. He was sent to Monterey California where he studied Arabic at the Defense Language Institute. He spent the next three years with the 101st Airborne (Air Assault) Division located in Ft. Campbell, Kentucky working in military intelligence. He deployed to Egypt and Israel as a member of the Multinational Force and Observers (MFO) in 1999. He received an honorable discharge in 2000.

In 2001, Mr. Fair was hired as a police officer in Bethlehem, PA. He left the department in 2003 in order to be a part of the war effort in Iraq. He was offered a position as an interrogator by CACI and worked in Baghdad, Abu Ghraib, and Fallujah. He resigned his position in summer 2004. He was subsequently hired as a civilian employee of the Department of Defense and returned to Iraq in 2005 to serve as an intelligence analyst.

Mr. Fair left the government in early 2006, and will attend Princeton Theological Seminary in the fall of 2007 in order to pursue the ministry.

Eugene R. Fidell

Gene Fidell heads the Military Practice Group at the Washington, D.C. firm of Feldesman Tucker Leifer Fidell LLP. Since 1991, he has also been president of the National Institute of Military Justice. He is a member of ABA’s Task Force on Treatment of Enemy Combatants and Standing Committee on Law and National Security.

Mr. Fidell served as a judge advocate in the Coast Guard from 1969 to 1972, and regularly represents members of the armed services. He has also represented print and electronic media in military justice matters. He has written extensively on military law, has taught the subject at Harvard and Yale Law Schools, and currently teaches it at the Washington College of Law, American University. His current work in progress (with co-authors Elizabeth L. Hillman and Dwight H. Sullivan) is Military Justice: Cases and Materials.

Mr. Fidell is a member of the American Law Institute, and has served on the Code Committee on Military Justice, the Advisory Board on the Investigative Capability of the Department of Defense, and the Rules Advisory Committee of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces. He is a graduate of Queens College and Harvard Law School.

Scott Horton

Scott Horton is a New York attorney known for his work in emerging markets and international law, especially human rights law and the law of armed conflict. He lectures at Columbia Law School in law of armed conflict and international public law. A life-long human rights advocate, Scott served as counsel to Andrei Sakharov and Elena Bonner, among others in the former Soviet Union. He is a co-founder of the American University in Central Asia, and has been involved in some of the most significant foreign investment projects in the Central Eurasian region. He has chaired the committees on international law, international human rights and on the states of the former Soviet Union at the New York City Bar Association. He is also a member of the advisory board of the National Institute of Military Justice, the EurasiaGroup and a director of the American Branch of the International Law Association. Since April 2007 he has also been a legal affairs and national security contributor to Harper’s magazine. He currently heads a project on accountability for private military contractors at Human Rights First.

Colonel Michael J. Meese
Col. Michael J. Meese is a Professor, U.S. Military Academy, and Head of the Department of Social Sciences at West Point, where he teaches economics and national security courses. He is also a Visiting Professor at the Woodrow Wilson School at Princeton University teaching a course in military force planning and decision-making. From January-March 2007, he worked in the Multinational Corps-Iraq Headquarters to assist with the development of campaign plans, specifically looking at economic and political issues. He will return to Iraq later this month to assist Gen. Petraeus with the assessment that he will provide to the President and Congress in September. Col. Meese has written extensively on defense economics, terrorism, and national security issues. He is a field artillery officer with previous assignments with the 101st Airborne Division (Air Assault) in Mosul, Iraq, with the Stabilization Force Headquarters in Bosnia, and with other units in Germany and the United States. He is a graduate of the National War College, Command and General Staff College, U.S. Military Academy, and holds a Ph.D., MPA and an M. A. from Princeton University.

Colonel Matthew Moten
Col. Matthew Moten is professor and deputy head of the Department of History at the United States Military Academy. He spent much of his career in armor and cavalry assignments. In April 1999 he became speechwriter to the Chief of Staff, Army, General Eric K. Shinseki. He later served as legislative advisor to the Chief of Staff. In 2002 Colonel Moten was selected as an Academy Professor in the USMA Department of History and was assigned as Chief, Military History Division. From January to June of 2005, he served as deputy commanding officer, Dragon Brigade, XVIII Airborne Corps and Task Force Dragon, Multi-National Corps, Iraq. In that position he was deputy commander of the Victory Base Complex in Baghdad, home to about thirty thousand military and civilian personnel, including several thousand contractors. He assumed his current duties in March 2006. He holds a doctorate in history from Rice University and is author of The Delafield Commission and the American Military Profession and articles on civil-military relations.

Gary J. Motsek
Since September 2006, Mr. Motsek has served as the principal advisor to the Office of Secretary of Defense (OSD) leadership on policy and program support to the combatant commands (less TRANSCOM). In that role, he ensures continued actions to promote military effectiveness, efficiency, economy, and standardization; develops and maintains a comprehensive policy framework and program support governing logistical and support operations, to include combat, humanitarian, and disaster relief; coordinates policy for OSD relating to field support operations, civilians in the forward area and battle space, forward distribution and maintenance operations, contract support, LOGCAP, management of frustrated cargo, disposal or re-distribution of excess materiel and scrap, and retrograde operations and their links into the national level industrial and supply base. Mr. Motsek also represents DUSD in liaison with JCS J4, COCOM J4’s, and Service Deputy Chiefs for Logistics regarding policy coordination and program support for COCOM field operations. And he directs, coordinates, and provides analysis, assessments, and testimony to higher authority, congressional committees and industry.

Mr. Motsek holds a B.S. in Environmental Engineering from Syracuse University, and an M.S. in Management, Troy State University, Alabama. His military schooling includes: Defense Acquisition University, 2005, Level III Certification; Army War College, 1997; Armed Forces Staff College, 1988; Command and General Staff College, 1984; Ordnance Officer Advanced Course, 1980; Explosive Ordnance Disposal Officer Course, 1976; Field Artillery Officer Basic Course, 1974; ROTC distinguished military graduate, Syracuse University. Mr. Motsek is the recipient of numerous awards, including the Meritorious Civilian Service Medal, Legion of Merit (2); Defense Meritorious Service Medal (3); Meritorious Service Medal (5); Joint Services Commendation Medal, Army Commendation Medal; Army Superior Unit Award, National Defense Service Medal, Army Service Ribbon, Overseas Service Ribbon (3), Senior Explosive Ordnance Disposal Badge, JCSID Badge, Ehrenkreuz (Cross of Honor) from Germany.

Deborah Pearlstein
Deborah Pearlstein is currently a Visiting Scholar at the Woodrow Wilson School of Public & International Affairs at Princeton University. An expert in U.S. constitutional law, Ms. Pearlstein's work focuses on U.S. counterterrorism and national security policies, executive power, and the role of the courts. She has published numerous popular and academic writings on the Constitution, executive power, and national security. Her most recent articles consider the role of the military as a constraint on executive power, and the Constitution and changing executive competencies in the post-Cold War world.

From 2003-2006, Ms. Pearlstein served as the founding director of the Law and Security Program at Human Rights First, where she led the organization’s efforts in research, litigation and advocacy surrounding U.S. detention and interrogation operations. Among other projects, Ms. Pearlstein led the organization's first monitoring mission to the U.S. Naval Base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, and co-authored a series of reports on the human rights impact of U.S. national security policy, including a landmark report on U.S. secret detention facilities, Behind the Wire. She also launched a series of off-the-record workshops bringing together the human rights, military, and national security communities to discuss key issues in the post-September 11 environment. A frequent public speaker on security-related topics in U.S. constitutional law, Ms. Pearlstein has testified before Congress on the human rights impacts of U.S. detention and interrogation operations.

Before embarking on a career in law, Ms. Pearlstein served in the White House as a Senior Editor and Speechwriter for President Clinton. Ms. Pearlstein received her A.B. in literature and politics from Cornell University, and her J.D. magna cum laude from Harvard Law School, where she was articles editor of the Harvard Law Review. She also served as a teaching fellow in Harvard College and in the Law School. Following law school, Ms. Pearlstein clerked for Judge Michael Boudin of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the First Circuit, then for Justice John Paul Stevens of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Sarah Percy
Sarah Percy is a Research Associate in the Oxford Leverhulme Programme on the Changing Character of War. In September she will take up the post of University Lecturer and Fellow in International Relations at Merton College, Oxford. She did her graduate study at Balliol College, Oxford, and received her first degree in politics from Queen’s University in Canada. Her research interests include mercenaries, private military companies and the privatization of force; the use of norms to regulate warfare; and the relationship between international law and international relations.

Ms. Percy has written a number pieces on mercenaries, private military and private security companies, including an Adelphi Paper, The Regulation of the Private Security Industry, (Routledge and the IISS, 2006), an article in International Organization entitled “Mercenaries: Strong Norm, Weak Law” (vol. 61 no. 2), and a forthcoming book, Mercenaries: The History of a Norm in International Relations (OUP, 2007). Ms. Percy was awarded the CAMOS Dissertation Prize at the 2006 American Political Science Association Convention for her dissertation, upon which the book is based.

Benjamin A. Powell
Benjamin A. Powell is the General Counsel of the Office of the Director of National Intelligence. Mr. Powell was nominated to this position by the President and unanimously confirmed by the U.S. Senate in 2006.

Mr. Powell began his career as a computer scientist at the Federal Bureau of Investigation and served as an officer in the U.S. Air Force. In the Air Force, he managed programs for the Intelligence Community primarily involving computer and network technology. His work included designing and delivering the first Department of Defense intelligence center to exploit and disseminate detection and surveillance data in support of counter-narcotics missions, managing the program that designed, acquired, and installed the intelligence data systems required in the new National Maritime Intelligence Center, supporting the development and enhancement of the U.S. Space Command Joint Space Intelligence Center, and providing support to U.S. Navy Fleet Intelligence Centers, U.S. Central Command and Air Combat Command.

After service in the Air Force, Mr. Powell attended Columbia Law School, where he was a Senior Editor of the Columbia Law Review, a Kent Scholar, and a Tony Patiño Fellow. After graduation, Mr. Powell served as a Law Clerk for Judge John M. Walker, Jr. on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, and for Justice Byron White and Justice John Paul Stevens on the U.S. Supreme Court.

Mr. Powell practiced law at Kellogg, Huber, Hansen, Todd & Evans in Washington, D.C., where he was part of the trial team that won the largest antitrust verdict in U.S. history. He next joined Vitria Technology, Inc, in Sunnyvale, California as Corporate Counsel. At Vitria, he handled securities, licensing, litigation, and intellectual property matters. He also oversaw European and Latin American legal issues for the company. He most recently served as an Associate Counsel to the President and Special Assistant to the President, where his work included advising on various initiatives related to reform of the Intelligence Community and creation of the Director of National Intelligence, liaison to The Commission on the Intelligence Capabilities of the United States regarding Weapons of Mass Destruction ("Silberman-Robb Commission"), and work with the Department of Homeland Security, the Department of State, the Department of Justice, the Department of Commerce, and NASA.

Mr. Powell holds two undergraduate degrees as part of the Management and Technology Program at the University of Pennsylvania, where he graduated magna cum laude with a degree in Economics from the Wharton School of Business and a degree in Applied Science from the School of Engineering and Applied Science. He is a member of the bar in California, the District of Columbia, and New York; and he has published research in the field of artificial intelligence and neural networks.
Gabor Rona
As the International Legal Director of the New York-based non-profit Human Rights First (HRF), Gabor Rona advises HRF programs on questions of international law and coordinates international human rights litigation. He also represents HRF with governments, intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations, the media and the public on matters of international human rights and international humanitarian law (the law of armed conflict). Before coming to HRF, Gabor was a Legal Advisor in the Legal Division of the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) in Geneva. At the ICRC he focused on the application of international humanitarian and human rights law in the context of counter-terrorism policies and practices. He represented the ICRC in intergovernmental, nongovernmental, academic and public forums and his articles on the topic have appeared in the Financial Times, the Fletcher Forum on World Affairs and the Chicago Journal of International Law, among other publications. In addition, he represented the ICRC in connection with the establishment of international and other criminal tribunals, including the International Criminal Court. He has also taught International Humanitarian Law and International Criminal Law in several academic settings, including the University Centre for International Humanitarian Law in Geneva, Switzerland.

Tommy Ross
Tommy Ross is a legislative assistant for Rep. David Price (D-NC), advising the Congressman on issues of defense, veterans, foreign affairs, and justice. He worked with Rep. Price in drafting H.R. 369, the Transparency and Accountability in Security Contracting Act of 2007, as well as contractor-related amendments to Intelligence and Defense Authorization bills. Prior to his current position, Tommy served as a Policy Analyst on defense, veterans, foreign policy, and homeland security issues at the Senate Democratic Policy Committee, and worked for Senator Tom Daschle. He graduated Davidson College; he later obtained an M.A. in Theology and Ethics from Union Theological Seminary in 2002.

Brigadier General Kevin Ryan
Brigadier General (retired) Kevin Ryan is a Senior Fellow at the John F. Kennedy School of Government’s Belfer Center. A career military officer, he has extensive leadership experience in Air and Missile Defense, Intelligence, and Political-Military policy areas. In his last active duty assignment BG Ryan was responsible for Army Strategic War Plans, Policy, and International Affairs. He has served as Senior Regional Director for Slavic States in the Office of Secretary of Defense and as Defense Attaché to Russia. He has also served as Chief of Staff for the Army’s Space and Missile Defense Command and as Assistant Professor Russian Language, United States Military Academy. BG Ryan holds a Bachelor of Sciences Degree from the U.S. Military Academy and Master’s Degrees from Syracuse University and the National War College.

Colonel Maritza S. Ryan
Col. Maritza S. Ryan is the Professor and Head of the Department of Law, U.S. Military Academy at West Point. Upon graduating from the United States Military Academy at West Point in 1982, she was commissioned as a Lieutenant in the Field Artillery. During her tour with the 1st Armored Division, Zirndorf, Germany, she was selected for the Judge Advocate General’s Funded Legal Education Program. Col. Ryan returned stateside to attend Vanderbilt University Law School and received her J.D., Order of the Coif, in 1988.

Col. Ryan’s initial tour as a Judge Advocate was at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, where she served as Senior Trial Counsel (Prosecutor). In 1990, she deployed to Operation Desert Shield/Desert Storm as a Brigade Legal Counsel, returning to Fort Sill to be the Senior Defense Counsel. Other assignments include Assistant Professor, Department of Law, West Point; Chief of Military Justice and Officer-in-Charge, Fort Shafter Branch Office, 25th Infantry Division (Light), Hawaii; Deputy Staff Judge Advocate for the Army Medical Department Center and School, Ft. Sam Houston, Texas; and Academy Professor and Deputy Head, Department of Law, West Point. Col. Ryan became the Professor and Head of the department in September, 2007.

Col. Ryan, a member of the New York State Bar, holds a Master of Laws from the Army Judge Advocate General’s School, a Master of Arts in National Security and Strategic Studies from the Naval War College, and has published and presented in the areas of Law and Leadership, the Law of Armed Conflict, and Military Justice.

Kim Lane Scheppelle

Kim Lane Scheppelle is Laurance S. Rockefeller Professor of Public Affairs and the University Center for Human Values at Princeton University. She joined the Princeton faculty in 2005 after nearly a decade on the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania School of Law, where she was the John J. O'Brien Professor of Comparative Law, as well as Professor of Sociology. Before that, she taught at the University of Michigan, where her primary appointment was in political science, and where she held secondary appointments in the law school and in what has become the Ford School of Public Policy. She is a former LAPA fellow (2004-2005), a senior fellow at the National Constitution Center (1998-1999), and the recipient of multiple grants from the American National Science Foundation for residential field work abroad. She received her Ph.D. in sociology from the University of Chicago and her A.B. in urban studies from Barnard College.

Professor Scheppelle concentrates on comparative constitutional law, using ethnographic, historical and doctrinal methods to understand the emergence and collapse of constitutional systems. After 1989, she focused her attention on the transformation of the countries under Soviet domination into constitutional rule-of-law states. She spent fully half of the years between 1994 and 2004 living in Hungary and then in Russia, studying the Constitutional Courts of each country and examining the ways in which the new constitutions have (or have not) seeped into public consciousness. Her many publications on post-communist constitutional transformation have appeared in law reviews and in social science journals. Professor Scheppelle has also written about constitutional law, tort theory, trade secret law, nondisclosure in contracts, rape and sexual harassment law, and abortion. Her book Legal Secrets (University of Chicago Press, 1988) won Special Recognition in the Distinguished Scholarly Publication competition of the American Sociological Association. It received both the Corwin Prize from the American Political Science Association and the Rosenberger Prize from the University of Chicago.
Since 9/11, Professor Scheppele has researched the effects of the international “war on terror” on constitutional protections around the world. Her book-in-progress, The International State of Emergency, explores the creation of international security law through UN Security Council resolutions and examines the effect that apparent compliance with these resolutions has had on constitutional integrity. She has also worked extensively on the topic of torture after 9/11. Her “Hypothetical Torture in the ‘War on Terror’” appeared in the Journal of National Security Law and Policy in 2006.

James D. Schmitt

James D. Schmitt is Vice President for Strategic Development with ArmorGroup. He joined the company in 2004 after returning from his second tour of Iraq. During his last assignment in Iraq, Mr. Schmitt served as the Operations Manager in support of a U.S. Department of Defense Program.

A former U.S. Army Officer with service in Special Operations and Infantry units, Mr. Schmitt served with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) where he worked with Coalition, NATO, NGO, and host-nation officials in Chief of Party assignments throughout Europe. In 1999, Mr. Schmitt was assigned to the Kosovo Verification Co-ordination Centre working in direct support of NATO and OSCE efforts. Mr. Schmitt’s other assignments include the U.S. Embassy in Amman, Jordan, as well as postings in Boston, Massachusetts; Berlin, Germany; Stavanger, Norway; and The Republic of Korea. In 2005, Mr. Schmitt deployed and stood up ArmorGroup’s Crisis Response Operations in New Orleans in the immediate aftermath of Hurricane Katrina. Mr. Schmitt also serves as Chairman of the Board for the International Peace Operations Associations, a non-profit, non-partisan, nongovernmental association of service companies dedicated to improving peacekeeping, peace enforcement, humanitarian rescue, and stability operations worldwide.

Mr. Schmitt received his Master’s Degree in Business Administration from Babson College in Wellesley, Massachusetts and is a graduate of The Kellogg School of Management’s “Leadership in Crisis Situations” Program.

Steven L. Schooner

Steven Schooner is Senior Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, Associate Professor of Law, and Co-Director of the Government Procurement Law Program at the George Washington University Law School. Before joining the faculty, Dean Schooner was the Associate Administrator for Procurement Law and Legislation at the Office of Federal Procurement Policy in the Office of Management and Budget. He previously served as a trial and appellate attorney in the Commercial Litigation Branch of the Department of Justice. He also practiced with private law firms and, as an Active Duty Army Judge Advocate, served as a Commissioner at the Armed Services Board of Contract Appeals. As an Army Reserve officer, he served for more than fifteen years as an Adjunct Professor in the Contract and Fiscal Law Department of the Judge Advocate General's School of the Army, in Charlottesville, Virginia.
Dean Schooner received his Bachelors degree from Rice University, J.D. from the College of William and Mary, and Master of Laws (with highest honors) from the George Washington University. He is a Fellow of the National Contract Management Association, a Member of the Board of Advisors, a Certified Professional Contracts Manager, and serves on the Board of Directors of the Procurement Round Table. He is the Faculty Advisor to the American Bar Association's Public Contract Law Journal and a member of the Government Contractor Advisory Board. He is author or co-author of numerous publications including The Government Contracts Reference Book: A Comprehensive Guide to the Language of Procurement.
Brigadier General James R. Schwenk
Brigadier General (retired) James R. Schwenk is currently Associate Deputy General Counsel at the Department of Defense. Mr. Schwenk retired from the Marine Corps as a Brigadier General on July 1, 2000, after 30 years of service as an infantry officer and judge advocate. For the past seven years, he has served in the Office of the General Counsel (OGC) of the Department of Defense, where he is responsible for providing legal advice in the Office of the Secretary of Defense on issues including accountability, military personnel, civil support and military justice. Mr. Schwenk also leads OGC attorney participation on crisis action teams, in exercises and in continuity of government operations.

Colonel Pat Shaw
Col. Pat Shaw of the U.S. Air Force joined the department of Military Strategy and Logistics at the Industrial College of the Armed Forces (ICAF), National Defense University, in July 2006. Before joining ICAF, Col. Shaw flew F-111 fighter-bombers in Europe and the United States for many years. He completed tours in operational and developmental test and evaluation on precision weapons and flight systems as well as a deployment to Operation Desert Storm. After graduating from the School of Advanced Airpower Studies, Col. Shaw commanded the 32nd Air Operations Squadron in Germany to include its deployment for the NATO war with Serbia. He next attended the National War College graduating in 2001. Following a short tour on the Air Staff, he commanded the 386th Air Expeditionary Wing in Kuwait during Operation Iraqi Freedom. Prior to his assignment to ICAF he led the Joint Concepts Division for the Joint Staff. Col. Shaw recently led 16 ICAF students on a five-month industry study examining privatized military operations in the United States, South Africa, and the United Kingdom.

Mark Silverman
Mark Silverman is the Congressional Advisor for the International Committee of the Red Cross Regional Delegation in Washington, D.C. Previously he served as Defense and Foreign Policy Advisor for Senator Lincoln Chafee of Rhode Island, who was Chairman of the Subcommittee on Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations. He began working for Senator Lincoln Chafee in 1999, following service in the office of Senator John Chafee. He received a B.B.A. with a concentration in finance from George Washington University and is currently pursuing a M.A. in international development studies from Brown University.

Dean Anne-Marie Slaughter
Dean Anne-Marie Slaughter is the Bert G. Kerstetter ’66 University Professor of Politics and International Affairs, and has served as Dean of the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University since September 2002. Slaughter came to the Wilson School from Harvard Law School where she was the J. Sinclair Armstrong Professor of International, Foreign, and Comparative Law and Director of the International Legal Studies Program.

Educated at Princeton, Oxford, and Harvard in both international law and international relations, Slaughter writes and publishes in both fields. Her work at the juncture of the two disciplines helped pioneer the current emphasis on cross-fertilization between international relations and international law. Dean Slaughter writes and teaches on global governance, international criminal law, and American foreign policy. Her most recent book is The Idea that Is America: Keeping Faith with Our Values in a Dangerous World. She is also the author of A New World Order, in which she identified transnational networks of government officials as an increasingly important component of global governance. She is the convener and co-chair of the Princeton Project on National Security, a multi-year project aimed at developing a new, bipartisan national security strategy for the United States, and is a member of the National War Powers Commission.

Dean Slaughter graduated magna cum laude from Princeton in 1980 where she majored in the Woodrow Wilson School and received a certificate in European cultural studies. She won the Daniel M. Sachs Memorial Scholarship, one of Princeton’s top honors, which provides for two years of study at Oxford University. She received her M.Phil. and D.Phil. degrees in international relations from Oxford in 1982 and 1992, respectively, and her law degree from Harvard Law School, cum laude, in 1985. She continued at Harvard after graduation as a researcher for her academic mentor, the distinguished international lawyer Abram Chayes. Before joining the Harvard faculty she taught at the University of Chicago Law School.

Chris Taylor

Chris Taylor was most recently the Vice President for Strategic Initiatives at Blackwater USA, a professional security, training, peace support, and stabilization operations firm, where he was responsible for developing and leading strategic initiatives and alliances, building new business, and assisting in the development and implementation of corporate strategy. He was also responsible for the sales and marketing efforts for all business units and acted as the primary media and public relations point of contact for Blackwater.

Mr. Taylor developed security, training, stability, and counterterrorism initiatives in the Middle East, Asia, Central Asia, Africa, and South America in the fight against global terrorism. These programs include counterterrorism strategy and training, C4I systems design and implementation, integrated vulnerability assessments and physical security solutions, strategic force transformations, political and economic consequences consulting, and turnkey solutions for unique security challenges.

Mr. Taylor spent 14 years in the Marine Corps as an enlisted infantryman and Force Recon Marine. As a Marine, he held both operational and policy leadership positions. After leaving the Marine Corps in 1999, he attended graduate school at The College of William & Mary, and earned an MBA in 2002. Mr. Taylor is the founding Chairman of the International Peace Operations Association, a member of the World Affairs Council and has attended Harvard University’s Program for Senior Executives in National and International Security at the John F. Kennedy School of Government.

Lieutenant Colonel Tim Vuono

Lt. Col. Vuono of the U.S. Army joined the faculty of the Military Strategy and Logistics Department at the Industrial College of the Armed Forces of the National Defense...
University in July 2005. While there, he led two war college industry study seminars in an examination of the privatization and outsourcing of military operations and support. He has extensive operational experience at all levels, serving in field artillery and maneuver units throughout the United States and Germany. In addition to numerous worldwide deployments, Lt. Col. Vuono served two tours in combat. Most recently, he was a commander in the 1st Cavalry Division, spending almost 14 months conducting combat and stability operations with his composite field artillery and motorized infantry battalion task force in Baghdad and central Iraq. He has also served as an Army Strategist and Policy Analyst. He holds a Master of Public Administration from the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University and a Master of Arts in National Security and Strategic Studies from the Naval War College. In July 2007, Lt. Col. Vuono will join the Center for Strategic and International Studies on a one-year fellowship.

Jeanne-Paloma Zelmati
Jeanne-Paloma Zelmati graduated this June from Princeton University, where she majored at the Woodrow Wilson School. Born and raised in France, Ms. Zelmati now lives in New York, where she will work next year at the Council on Foreign Relations as Research Associate to President Emeritus and Board Senior Fellow Leslie H. Gelb. This spring, Ms. Zelmati served as senior commissioner for an undergraduate task force on improving monitoring and oversight in private military contracting.